Daily Constitution

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 24, 1875.

The first of the season in the Georgia market, the crops in that section are remarkably fine and promising.

The Athens Georgian assumes that the consumption of fertilizers in the state this year is in the neighborhood of 60,000 tons.

The Gainesville, Fla., Citizen is jubilant over the new market in the north-west for Florida melons.

(Our Special Correspondence)

BALTIMORE, June 18, 1875.

It is uppermost in my mind, as I take my pen to write you this morning, to rejoice with you in the revival of religion now prevailing in your city and to which I have seen repeated allusions in the Constitution.

BEECHER'S FUTURE.

He Will "Go Straight On," No Matter What the Issue of the Trial.

The article below appears as the leading editorial in the last issue of the Christian Union, Henry Ward Beecher's paper, accompanied by a notice in which the following article, Mr. Beecher's editorial associates once more address the public in their own name, and in expression of their own views upon the subject.

Before the next number of this paper is published, the suit of Theodore Tilton against Henry Ward Beecher will probably have reached its end. At this time we shall assume nothing as to the result of the trial.

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 25, 1875

A Mississippi Scene.

The Natchez Weekly Democrat has the following satire on the conduct of the farmers of the State of Mississippi, which we think can be read with profit by those of Louisiana, and in fact, all the South-western States:

"Hail, stranger, you seem to be going to market. I am."

"What are you carrying that plow along for?"

"All the way to Pittsburg to get sharpened."

"You have! We've started our blacksmith out; he pulled up the other day and went to Texas."

"Well, that's rather a good idea, my friend—sending a plow so far to get sharpened."

"Not so good as you heard it was. We had to have a new one made. It was so worn out that it was no good."

"You're right. We used to have a mill on the Mississippi, Creek, but it was so worn out that it was no good."

"I didn't say anything about grist-mills, but I did say that we had to have a new one made. It was so worn out that it was no good."

"I see you have a hide on your wagon."

FUNERAL NOTICE.

SAGE—Died, at his residence at West End, on the morning of the 23rd instant. B. Y. Sage, aged 41 years.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock, Friday evening, from the Cemetery, where his remains will be deposited in a vault, waiting the arrival of absent members of his family.
